homes yesterday from Happy Land. The Tribune Fresh Air Fund home at Tenafly, N. J., after nine weeks of vacation. This is probably the longest Fresh Air Fund home in the city ever provided for so large a party.

The girls were sent to Happy Land on July 29 for a fortnight's outing. Just after their arrival there New York began to be worried about the epidemic of infantile paralysis. Tenafly was one of the first towns in New Jersey to declare a quarantine against New York children, and shortly after the arrival of the party of girls at Happy Land, the health authorities notified The Tribune Fund it would not be permitted to send further parties of children to the home during the summer.

As all preparations for the season had been made for the summer of 1916, the girls were sent to Happy Land for the last time.

children were allowed to remain. The children informed their parents of the opportunity and without exception got permission to stay until the end of the season.

Needless to say, the fifty who returned yesterday showed the results of their 450 weeks of fresh air and sunshine. They were as rugged and healthy a crowd of girls as could be found anywhere.

While these girls were returning to the city, 151 boys and girls were enjoying outdoor life at Rockaway Beach as the summer guests of the Tribune Fund. These children were to have been sent to the beach Monday, but the rain in

They are, however, to be sent out again to-day, to-morrow and Friday and will, despite Monday's disappointment, retention days of The Tribune Fund's day outings is spreading fast among the children of the city and requests for places in them are coming in in large numbers. There is no doubt now of the success of what was begun by the fund ten days ago as an experiment. It will be necessary to make arrangements to accommodate larger numbers of children if all the needy ones are to be taken care of.
